portance than the mere construction of a railroad in the counties of Bourbon, Clarke and Madison, in Kentucky. I now wish to show that the projectors of this no newly de-grounds to look for aid to other sources than those mentioned at the meeting, when the Directors of the Covington and Lexington Railroad Company commenced their suit for the recovery of the road, being without means to influence the public at large, they determined to quietly prosecute their suits in the courts where they believed that the law and a just cause would give them success. They were met at the threshold by the plea of the defendants that they had purchased all the corporate rights of the company, and that the plaintiff had no right to sue that, in fact, the plaintiff had no legal existence whatever. This plea was

This plea, together with other dilatory pleas in bar, in estoppel, and every other device to procure delay and gain time to waste the means of the plaintiffs and dishearten them, and discredit their suit, have been overruled in their order. And now, it is well understood, that the trial upon the merits—now at hand—will follow all these judgments, in favor of the

But here is the special point of interest to those interested in the road from Paris to Richmond: The city of Cincinnati has $200,000 stock in the Covington and Lexington Railroad, the city of Covington $300,000, and $200,000 guaranteed bonds; the county of Pendleton $50,000, the county of Bourbon $100,000, and the county of Fayette $200,000 stock.

The Directors of the Covington and Lexington Railroad Company, feeling encouraged by the success of their suit, and to be in readiness for future events, have determined to ask from the present Legislature of Kentucky a further amendment

Jefferson Davis in Alabama--A

Ex-President Davis came up from Memphis on the train to this place a day or two since. He was on his way to visit Hon. C. C. Clay, Jr., his plantation (where he now resides), near Gurleysville, twenty miles east of Huntsville. It is hoped that he will find it convenient, before

A gentleman who was on the train with Mr. Davis relates the following: An Irish widow who had two children with her, walked up to the Ex-President and asked: "Is this Mister Davis?" "Yes, madam," he replied. "Well, sir, I lost my husband in the cause which you espoused, and (giving him a hearty shake of the hand with the tears trickling down her cheeks), I feel just like I was meeting with my father." She gave the name of her deceased husband, and Mr. Davis recollected him as the gallant Major of a Confederate battery. She said she had been brok-up by Wilson's raid, and was not trying to get back with her children to her old home in Georgia. The Ex-President and other gentlemen were moved to tears by the affecting incident, and contributed money to help her on her way.

Madagascar.

Is an Island situated in the Indian Ocean, and lays East of the Continent of Africa. The people have always been idolaters, devoted to the same character of worship that their neighbors, the negroes of Africa have lent themselves to, the Fetish worship; but Missionaries have been laboring among them, and preaching the truth as it is in Christ, fervently and earnestly. Last Summer the Queen of Madagascar embraced Christianity, together with all the Aristocracy of her country. She proclaimed that her religion should become the religion of the Island, and ordered the idols to be burned and destroyed. She was obeyed and Madagascar is now a christian country.

The French People.

The Empire of Louis Napoleon is not gliding as smoothly down life's rapid stream as heretofore. An ugly storm has overtaken the French Ship of State, and the concern begins to tremble and shake from stern to stem, as the fierce winds howl fearfully around that ray old craft. But the foundering of their Ship of State, is no new or startling announcement. The French people are a very fickle race, and are not likely to be satisfied with any Government which continues solvent for fifteen years. Hence, we have inklings of another uprising of the people there. Many are discontented, dissatisfied and revolutionary.

The leader of this new move in France, is one Henri Rochefort, the Editor of the "La Marseillaise."

He is also a member of the Chamber of Deputies. It is said that he is a man of considerable ability, and that he has managed to give the Emperor's Government much trouble.

Recently one of his co-editors, M. Noir, called on one Pierre Bonapart, a so-called Prince of the Napoleon dynasty, to arrange a little difficulty for the Prince and Rochefort, but the Prince in a most cowardly manner killed M. Noir, and tried to kill the gentleman who was with him, but he made his escape from the House of the Prince, where he had invited them to arrange the business.

This murder has stirred up much bad blood against the Government, and Napoleon the 3rd has been compelled to throw around Paris, a force of one hundred thousand of his soldiers to protect himself and his Government from the mobs. It is said that the French Government was never as able to protect itself as at this time. That may be true, as far as foreign powers are concerned, but it don't hold good when the French soldier is required to fire upon his own people.

Time will work out this Bonapart Empire, yet, and the people of France may have a republic.

Radical Meanness.

Recently the Hon. Thos. L. Jones, from this District, offered a resolution or two in Congress, directing the President to give that attention to the reception of the remains of Mr. Peabody, as his position demanded. Considering the fact that this great Philanthropist was born in Massachusetts, it was believed by gentlemen and white people, members of Congress, that these resolutions should have come from some member of the House, from that State—and it was hoped doubtless, by Col. Jones that when he offered his resolutions that some gentleman, (if any could be found,) from that section of the country, would pronounce an eulogy worthy the great christian character of Mr. Peabody. But none was found. The radicals wanted no resolutions, and they intended to have no eulogy pronounced upon him, in that House, and they accordingly after the announcement that resolutions would be offered, organized a regular opposition.

Col. Jones called up the resolutions, and succeeded in obtaining a recognition from the Speaker, when Butler, the Beast of Radicalism, called him to order, and claimed that he had the floor on account of the fact that he had some report to make on Reconstruction, and being the Chairman of the Committee on that business, by the rules of the House, every other proposition must be laid aside, for the Beast to howl forth his report, should he desire to growl out. He said he had one to make on this occasion, and hoped the gentleman from Kentucky would excuse him, and continuing his palaver for some time, finally broke down, and found himself ill prepared to talk, and not able to make any report. A few of his radical friends assisted him slightly, to fill up and occupy the time; but Col. Jones soon discovered the plot, and commenced skirmishing with the spoon-thief, and compelled him to yield the floor. The resolutions were read and adopted, and an eulogy was pronounced by our representative.

It seems that Mr. Peabody was a Southern sympathizer, at least such is our information at this time, and that is the reason why Butler and his gang opposed any recognition on the part of the Government of the arrival of the distinguished dead.

We are heartily glad that the resolutions were opposed by such men as Butler, and that they were adopted without his assistance.

That good and great man, Mr. Peabody, would scorn, were he living to-day, to be the recipient of any favor from such creatures as Butler & Co. He did not endorse Mr Butler's Military career, as no christian gentleman could, and as a matter of course Butler had no stomach for decent people, and did not desire the name of a gentleman eulogised in his hearing.

Yes, Mr. Peabody was a Southern sympathizer, but had he been otherwise, his great acts of charity would have endeared his name to the people of the South forever. When this great man had fallen, the Southern people mourned. They did not know, say, they did not make the enquiry—"was Peabody for or against the South"—and perhaps few if any would have known it, if Butler, the Beast, had not made it public by his miserable opposition in this matter. But such acts of little meanness are enacted every day by the radical leaders. It is a part and parcel of their policy to discover to the world their heinousness. They have but little else to do. Were they to pass a law which would conform in any particular to the Constitution of the country, they would lose their individuality, and radicalism would soon become extinct.

The New School Law.

One of the most important duties which the General Assembly, now in Session, will be called upon to perform, is the revision of the School Laws of the State. Not only the limited and inadequate means of endowment hitherto, but the deficiency of the law itself, in many respects, contributed to paralyze the operations of our Public School System. Since the vote of the people on last August, when the proposition to increase the tax was carried by a majority of twenty-five thousand, the first obstacle to the success of the free school system can no longer be urged. To remove the second, it devolves upon the Legislature to enact a general system of wise and suitable laws, and to repeal all laws inconsistent therewith.

A revised code of laws for the better organization of the school system, in accordance with the instruction of the Legislature at its last Session, has been prepared, and submitted to the General Assembly, by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. In remodeling the old System, its form, features, and matter are retained as far as admissible. But the exigencies of the past, and the vast increase of the amount to be distributed to the various districts of the State, rendered many changes necessary. The commencement of the new school year is changed from the first of January to the first day of July. Many reasons may be assigned in favor of this change. The 31st of December is deemed an inconvenient period for the termination of the school year. The winter months are the most suitable for parents to spare their children for the school room, as they often need their services for the planting and harvest seasons. To terminate the school year on the 31st of December, is to make the provision interfere with the public convenience, and to interrupt the school at its most auspicious period. Schools generally open and close at the period to which the termination of the new school year is made to conform.

I shall have occasion hereafter, in future communications, to present to those of your readers who are interested in the new "Common School System," and have not the opportunity of reading the contemplated Act, additional departures from the old law, and some of the arguments assigned by the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the change.

Conservatism.

Conservative negroes don't stand much show in Mecklenburg, Va. The Roanoke Valley says: "Tom Warren, a Conservative colored man (the very first one of his race to vote the Conservative ticket in the country), was assaulted on Saturday by two notoriously Radical negroes, Solomon Fields and Isaac Dugger, and beaten nearly to death. On last Saturday a few colored men came to Clarksville for the purpose of organizing a 'Walker club,' and although they conducted themselves with perfect propriety, they were set upon by a drunken rabble and driven from the town."

Hydrophobia.

Francis Robinson, of Blackinton, Mass., some thirty years ago was bitten by a mad dog. About every month he has had one or more fits, and last week had four in one day. During the paroxysms he barks like a dog and froths at his mouth. At other times he is able to do some work.

One or the Other.—By J. F. Lebus.

—From the French.

In the reign of Henry IV., of France, a peasant, one day, was riding in the direction of Paris. When within a short distance of the city, he met a solitary rider of stately mien. It was the King. His retinue purposely had remained behind some distance. "Which way, my friend? Business, at Paris, I presume?"

"Yes," replied the farmer; "besides, I have a great desire to see our good old King, who loves his people so tenderly."

The King smiled, and said, "You can enjoy this pleasure, I have no doubt, but you will probably need some directions."

"But if I could only distinguish the king from the many courtiers by whom, doubtless, he will be surrounded."

"I shall tell you, so that you can not be mistaken; you will only have to notice which one will keep his hat on his head, when all others will have reverently uncovered theirs."

They now proceeded to Paris in company with each other, and, of course, the farmer on the right of the king, for, whether designedly or by chance, when unaffected simplicity can be guilty of an awkwardness, it never fails to exhibit it. The peasant replied to all the questions of the king in the most affable manner. He related to him many things about farming, concerning his family affairs, and how he, too, sometimes, of a Sunday, had his hen in the pot, and, for a long time, said nothing. But when he saw how every window was hoisted, and every street crowded with people, and how with the most profound reverence, every one gave way, a new light flashed across his mind. "My good sir," said he to his unknown companion, whom he now eyed with astonishment mingled with awe, "either you are the king, or I am; for we both alone still have our hats on."

The king smiled, and said, "I am the king; when you have put away your horse, and attended to your business, come to my castle; I will then have a hot soup prepared for you, and show you the dauphin."

Something Coming.

The sun's atmosphere, say scientific men, is in a highly excited condition. A column of magnetic light is shooting out further and further from the solar sphere, and it is now stretching out forty-five millions of miles. In other words, it has accomplished half the distance between us and the sun! The interesting question, and one on which, perhaps, we do not wish any more light of this character, is: How long will it be before it finishes the rest of the distance and bridges the gigantic chasm between the earth and the sun? Is it a messenger sent out to snatch us up as food for the insatiable monster that keeps himself warm by devouring planets, and whose freighting propensities this whole earth would satisfy for a few days only! If so, how long will this emissary be in reaching us, and carrying the globe away as if we were a gigantic lump of coal for a roaring furnace? This column of light at intervals indicates its approach by flashing and corruscating with fresh brilliancy. So decided are its effects that two astronomers, one at London, the other at Oxford, and neither knowing the experiences of the other, supposed that the dark glass of their telescopes had been broken or put out of range, so strong was the flash of the golden light upon the vision. It is predicted that before the end of next year this magnetic light will have got near enough to us to make its immediate and actual influence upon the earth distinctly felt. It is announced that in consequence we may expect to see phenomena that have never been seen or known before by the human race. If any of our readers are therefore yet disposed to complain of the weather and the earthquakes, let them remember that, by this time next year, they may have an entire new line of experiences to explain and endure, in comparison with which the fitful winter and rough, rude autumn of to-day, may seem like a June morning in paradise, and the earthquake's shock and the lightning's storm a placid rocking in the cradle with a pleasant lullaby of thunder.

Reputation in Private.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says: "The long-promised speech of Mr. Munger, of Ohio, advocating the repudiation of the National debt, was delivered in the House to-day, and was, in turn, repudiated by all the Democrats present, except Mr. Jones, of Kentucky, whereat Mr. Munger waxed wroth, and in private conversation afterward denounced them all as cowards, adding a declaration that 'Every one of them has time and time again privately talked open and unqualified repudiation of everything except their salaries.'"

We honor Mr. Munger for his bold and earnest talk. He will have the thanks of a majority of the American people, and time will vindicate his position.—Pomeroy's (N. Y.) Democrat.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required? To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by Hootland's Stomach Bitters than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpority or irregularity of the bowels, and that this condition must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs. Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every excretory function. Indigestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system set into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a purgative cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like stychnine or quinia.

A New Invention.

Prof. Amende, of Paris, Ky., has invented a self-acting water fountain. It is designed for ornament. By its peculiar mechanism it catches and returns all the water necessary for its use. Prof. A. has applied for a Patent.

River Bank Full.

On Saturday night last, rain commenced falling in this section, and on Monday, the South Fork of Licking came booming down, until it was bank full.

Fat Stock.

James Talbot sold his fine fat bullock to M. J. Rankin, last week, for 8 cents per pound. It weighed 2,000 pounds.

A Mad Dog.

Was shot in Covington yesterday, by some heartless man. It is an outrage that these harmless creatures should be hurt. An indignation meeting should be held immediately, and the legislature should adopt some stringent law for their protection.

Distillery Burned.

The Distillery of Dr. McMahon, on Main Licking, near Falmouth, in Pendleton county, was destroyed by fire last Tuesday morning about four o'clock. The fire was supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Loss about $15,000, no insurance.

That Birkshire Hog.

Mr. G. Williams, says he has found his "lost Hog"—but believes that it was of no great importance at best, for he was the commonest of his kind, although he was sold to him for extra fine.

Railroad.

Last Thursday morning the Freight Train from Lexington ran off the track at Bryant's Station, and quite a number of the cars were wrecked. About the only car that was not destroyed contained five Horses, worth about fifteen thousand dollars. Mr. Wilson, formerly of this place, had two fine mares, which he says he was pleased to learn were not killed.

Mules.

The prospect for the mule trade is flattering. In St. Louis, choice mules bring $175 to $180. When sold in pairs bring $400. We hear that Mr. W. A. Osborn has gone south with a drove for which he paid $165 per head.

Our Boys.

Are making themselves very obnoxious to the railroad Conductor's on the Passenger Trains that pass through Cynthiana. They must not jump upon or off the Platform when the cars are moving, as there is great danger of being killed. We hope parents and guardians will caution their boys in this thing, as several accidents have already occurred by such bad behavior.

Religious Excitements.

For the last two week meetings have been held in the Methodist Church, at this place, with Revs. C. W. Miller and Hiner, preaching. We learn that about thirty have been added to the church.

A meeting is also in progress at the Taylor Street Methodist Episcopal Church (South), at Newport. Rev. Mr. Rand, of Maysville, will assist the Pastor in his exercises the remainder of the week.

Press Convention.

Owing to the press of business and sickness, we had to forego the pleasure of attending the Press Convention, which met at Lexington on the 12th inst. We understand those who were there had a good time, and business done up in the right style. Full particulars next week.

Louisville Commercial.

We have been negligent, and have failed to notice the receipt, at this office, of the "Daily Commercial." It is splendidly gotten up, mechanically speaking, and displays in its editorial make up considerable ability. We understand that Mr. Robert Kelly is the editor. Before the war he resided in Cynthiana, and practiced law. We remember him well, as a modest, clever gentleman, and he so demeaned himself while a citizen of our city, as to gain the respect of all who became acquainted with him. His paper is radical in politics. We cannot wish him success politically, but personally we wish him lots of luck.

Another Shot.

Last Saturday night, a colored man named George Connor, concluded that he wanted some chickens to eat, and thereupon repaired to H. Clay Magee's residence which lay south of the city. At that place he commenced picking around the stable for choice fowls and ran into a trap which he sprung and a gun was discharged, and a bullet passed through Connor's body. This sudden and unexpected change in the chicken business put a stop to him, and he called loudly for Mr. Magee, who got up from his warm bed to find a colored man bleeding profusely from a wound he had just received. He had two chickens bagged. The Sheriff of the county was sent for, and he removed him to his quarters with his chickens.

This is the third time, as we are informed that this fellow has been shot. The last time he was caught opening a meat house, and merely escaped with his life. We hope he will behave himself hereafter—and let this shooting be a warning to others.

Miscegenation.

Mr. S. S. Saylor, who is styled the fighting parson, has introduced in the North Carolina House of Commons a bill legalizing marriages between blacks and whites in his county from 1865 to 1869, inclusive. This is miscegenation and social equality on the broadest basis; for if it be right to legalize these marriages in Robinson county, it is right to legalize them in every other county, and if for the last four years, then for the next four; in short, for all times and all counties and all States.

Hoodland's German Bitters.

It is over twenty years since this celebrated remedy was introduced to the American Public. During this time it has performed hundreds and thousands of the most astonishing cures, and its reputation and sale have now reached a point that far surpasses any remedy of the present or past ages. It has acquired this great reputation, not by a system of puffing, but by the actual merit of the article itself. If you are afflicted with any of the diseases for which it is recommended, such as Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Nervous Debility, or disorder of the Digestive Organs, it will not fail to sustain its reputation in your case. For sale by all Druggists. It is not an alcoholic drink.

Ring's Ambrosia.

De Soto, when he visited the shores of America, sought long and ardently for the "Spring of perpetual youth," that those who bathed therein might never grow old in appearance. People of our day have in part discovered a substitute for this unfound spring in Ring's Vegetable Ambrosia, a few applications of which gives to white or gray hair that dark, strong and glossy appearance peculiar to youthful beauty. If any of our readers doubt this, let them try a bottle, and be convinced of the truth of our assertion.

Methodist Church.

This year the people of the Methodist Persuasion, in this city, succeeded in procuring the services of a preacher who has brains and energy; and he has been moving the people here and has doubtless found plenty of material to increase the numbers and influence of the Church; and we understand that Mr. Miller and Mr. Hiner have, within the past two weeks, added one hundred new members. We consider that good work and good success. Now is the time to raise the money to build a good house to worship in, and the subject is pressed upon the membership, a house will most certainly be built.

DR. FISHBLATT,

Office 21 Second Avenue, New York City, Where he can be Consulted Personally, or by Mail.

DR. FISHBLATT has discovered the most certain, speedy, and only effectual remedy for the world's weakness in the back or limbs, strictures, affections of the kidneys or bladder, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, dyspepsia, languor, loss of spirits, physical and mental disorders arising from solitary habits of youth—secret and solitary practices, more fatal than the songs or riddles to the mariners of Ulysses, blighting their best brilliant hopes, an anticipation of their future, and a source of endless trouble and suffering. Young Men, especially, who have become the victims of this vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps away thousands of the bravest and noblest of the most exalted talents and brilliant intellects, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senates with the thunder of eloquence, and ranked to ecstasy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

MARRIAGE.—Married persons or young men and ladies contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, especially cured. He who places himself under the care of Dr. Fishblatt, may religiously confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely on his skill as a physician.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS immediately cured, and full vigor restored. The distressing affection, which renders the married man and his wife, is life miserable and marriage impossible. It is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgence. Young persons are too apt to commit excess from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into this vice, than by the prudent.

Be-side being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive systems of both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the physical and mental functions weakened, loss of procreative power, nervous irritability, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indigestion, constitutional debility, and, finally, and early death.

Dr. Fishblatt, graduated from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States; has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubles with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKI PARTICULAR NOTICE.—Dr. Fishblatt addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, uniting them for either business, study, society or marriage. These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the breast, dimness of sight, loss of muscular power, palpitation of the heart, dyspepsia, nervous irritability, symptoms of consumption, derangement of the brain, and functions, &c.

MARRIAGE.—The effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion to society, self-distrust, loss of soliloquy, &c., are some of the evils produced.

Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining years, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough, and symptoms of consumption.

Young Men, who have injured themselves by a certain practice, indulged in when alone, a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, ruin marriage, procreate disease, and destroys both body and mind, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contemplating Marriage, reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote conjugal happiness. Indeed, without these, the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage; the prospects hourly darken to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with their own.

Disease of Imprudience. When the misguided and imprudent votary of dissipation, who has lulled the seeds of this painful disease, in too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from respectability, can alone benefit him. He falls into the hands of designing pretenders, who, incapable of curing, fill his system with a morbid and despair leave him with ruined health, to sigh over his galling disappointment; or, by the use of that deadly poison, mercury, hasten the constitutional symptoms of this terrible disease, such as, swellings of the heart, head, throat, nose, skin, &c., progressing with a frightful rapidity, till death puts a period to this dreadful suffering, by sending him to the unrelenting and cruel country from whose horne no traveler returns.

Those who reside at a distance, wishing treatment, CAN HAVE MEDICINE SENT THEM BY EXPRESSING $10. January 6, 1870—1y.
